Winnipeg, Nov. 28.—A flight from bore of McLeod Bay, Great Slave Lake, to Fort Resolution, may be undertaken to-day by the McAlpine party. The men's long wait of more than two weeks for the freeze-up so they could land their heavy ski-equipped planes on the lee during the serial journey to civilization was ended last night when Pilot William Sutton, pilot of the Dominion Explorers Limited, brought them word that the lakes were ready for winter flying.

Sutton took off Monday morning from Stoney Rapids and cut straight across the Barrens on his 200-mile jump to Reliance. With no radio station at the latter place, officials here have not heard from him since that time, but they are confident he will have delivered his message to Gapt. G. S. Blanchet, commander of the four planes and four pilots bringing out the McAlpine men.

Oriental

Question of Vital Importance to Canada and B.C. Dis-

Reasons underlying opposition to the Orientals were discussed from four angles: Racial prejudice; economic competition; alarm over the weight of numbers; and racial assimilation.

"It is contended," he said, "that immigration and naturalization are domestic questions and therefore no people can come to Canada except upon our own terms. It is assumed the wemat preserve this soil and this civilization for the Caucasian race. Japan excluded Chinese in order to preserve her own people and that is what Australia, California and Canada are doing. The repository of firms that improvement in the situations.

Discussing 'he question of racial prejudice, Dr. Macrae spoke of the bariers of race and colors as regards the rientals and of their habits of instry and thrift that were intolerable to those competing with them lor and language were indefensible afters. They were of emotion and metality. If there were any need action it must be along other unds than those of color, language tappearance.

grounds than those of color, language and appearance.

From the angle of weight of numbers. Dr. Macrae pointed out that alphan was populated about 38 people to the square mile. The United States had about thrity to the square mile and Canada two or three. Naturally if all restrictions were removed, this country would be inundated with Orientals. There was also the greater fecundity of the Oriental to be considered, especially the Japanese, whose birthrate had risen from one in every 252 to one in thirteen, in ten years.

The speaker pointed out that the Orientals were not readily assimilated through intermarriage. Biological evidence was against the intermarriage of whites and Asiatics, he said. Problem

Education as the chief solution of the Oriental problem in Canada was advanced by Dr. A. O. Macrae. former principal of Westera Canada College, Winnipeg, in an address before the North Saanich Service Club last night.

Dr. Macrae discussed the subject of "The Yellow Perli" before an sudi-ence of nearly 250 people. He dealt with the topic from the point of view, he said, of a reporter, giving various arguments around a question which he considered most vital to Canada at the present time.

Barriers which lay betweer the Oriental and the white race were deeper than those of language and color, the speaker stressed. They were those of self-consciousness and consciousness of kind. For racial prejudice on the basis of color and language, there was no defence. The motive was a greater one.

Dr. Macrae explained at the outset he had no gospel to preach, no policy to advance and no proposition to before the gathering the present position of discussion on the question.

Pirstly, he dealt with the Oriental population of this country. There were upwards of 25,000 Chinese in British Columbia and about 40,000 in Canada. Japanese numbered about 20,000 and East Indians and Hindus 2,000, thus making something in the neighborhood of 65,000 Orientals in the problem which the oriental was law abiding and reserved to the oriental competition in British Columbia was most keenly felt in the neighborhood of 65,000 Orientals in the neighborhood of 65,000 Orientals in the problem which and the problem which and the problem which and a consonate the problem of the problem which and the problem which and the problem which and the problem which and the problem which are commented to the problem which are consonated to the problem which are commended to the

In Vancouver the institute has made such strides forward that it now has an excellent orchestra. Some of its members read their music by the braille system and commit it to memory while others learn it by heart from the dictation of their friends. During September the orchestra, save a concert on the Mainland and gained high praise for their playing.

Returning to the subject of teaching, Miss McKellar stated that all tuition given the blind by the institute was free.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Tranquilly in keeping with the suggestion of President Hoover's proclamation that the day be devoted to rest and an expression of gratitude for the plenty the year has brought, the capital of the United States to-day entered into its annual observance of Thanksgiving. Many Washington officials had gone to their homes in various sections of the country for the holiday. Most of the Gabinet members were in town, but with Congress in adjournment throughout the week, large numbers of the legislators had deserted the capital.

At very few seaside resorts on this continent has Nature provided advantages so adaptable as this area. In its present condition, however, it is unsightly and no ent to our civic pride.

Visitors to the city often have commented upon the wasted opportunity represented by the water-front in its neglected state. Its outline is charming to the Eye, but its "adornments," with the exception of that period in which the broom is in full bloom, are a standing reproach.

No doubt the City Council will seek authority for the necessary expenditures as soon as it has he time to study the plans now in preparation.

"HAND-PICKED REPORTING"

LTHOUGH IT HAD NO REASON TO A complain about the treatment it received at the hands of either the Premier or his cabinet colleagues, hands of either the Premier or his cabinet colleagues, The Kamloops Sentinel says "no simon pure newspaperman will agree with the action of the Conservative convention, which excluded reporters on Liberal newspapers from that gathering." For that matter, it argues, "no progressive citizen will agree that such a step is conducive to good politics." Our Interior contemporary — an independent newspaper in the strictest sense of the term—then proceeds:

There is, of course, much to be said for the claim of Attorney-General Pooley that it was a family party, and as such their opponents of the press should not seek admittance. On the other hand, there was more to be said for actually less conservative men, such as Hon, R. L. Maitland, who claimed that such a policy spelt disaster. Let the whole world come in, said 'Pat' Maitland, or words to that effect.

The Sentinel comes to the conclusion "that the Tory machine harbors men who are away behind the times," and "at the sight of the few men excluded, men who represent a vocation which in this province has a high standard, our sense of fair play rebelled at such treatment, because it casts a reflection on the entire press when any members of it cannot be trusted

The Kamloops paper concludes with the statement that the entire proceedings of the convention were couched in such moderate language that there was nothing to fear from Liberal reporters . . . "com-pared to an average session of the Legislature it was

It very often happens, however, that at a "family gathering" a considerable number of beans are spilled. Perhaps Mr. Pooley expected something of the sort.

THE LEAGUE MAY SETTLE IT

ALTHOUGH RUSSIA IS NOT A MEM-A ber of the League of Nations, if China makes a formal appeal to the Geneva body, it is fairly cer-tain the Council will use its influence towards bringing about a settlement of the dispute which still bristles with dangerous possibilities. Just how much fighting has taken place on the Manchurian border is not clear. Reports so far received are somewhat conflicting. Indications are, however, that the situation is not as serious as many people may think.

war pact, and the fact that the soldiers of the two countries have been glaring at one another for months without engaging in any serious form of hostilities is a tribute to the moral effect of their adherence to that a tribute to the moral effect of their adherence to that agreement. This is not to say that its restraining in fluence will prevail indefinitely; but it is fairly safe to say, if neither country had bound itself to the principle of that undertaking, the trend of events on the Manchurian border might have been very different.

Neither China nor Russia has the money or the material with which to wage war on a large scale.

A realization of this condition on the part of both realization of this condition on the part of both obviously has had the effect of dampening their ardor. But it must always be borne in mind, as so disastrously proved by the Great War, when fighting begins even on a comparatively small scale there is no guarantee that it can be confined to the nations primarily involved.

MR. CHURCHILL DOES NOT KNOW

MR. WINSTON CHURCHILL HAS SUCceeded in adapting himself to various political conditions. He has been a Conservative, a Liberal, Constitutionalist, and he now is classed as a Conservative again. But he seems unwilling to forego his servative again. But he seems unwilling to forego his old love for free trade.

The other night he addressed a distinguished audience at the Canada Club in London on his impressions of this country. He said "our urgent task is to develop the economic relations between Britain and the great Dominion; we must get closer to the practical realities of the position." As he asked "How is this to be done?" the company waited for him to answer the question himself, expecting him to announce his conversion to the Beaverbrook plan of free trade within the empire and a tantif against the of free trade within the empire and a tariff against the rest of the world. But Mr. Churchill confessed that he did not know how it was to be done.

Not often is the former Chancellor of the Exchequer dissuaded from taking any political fence when the circumstances seem to warrant. He obviously realizes, however, that one large fly in the Beaver-brook ointment is the objection of the British consumer to a tax on food, which the newspaper magnate's proposal would surely entail.

The man in this case was arrested some time ago and brought to trial for murder; but he was convicted only of manslaughter and sentenced to four years in prison. He appealed to his lawyer and eventually succeeded in getting a new trial. This time he was convicted of second degree murder and instead of four years, he was sentenced to prison for life. Again he appealed, and again he obtained a new trial. On this occasion, however, things went somewhat differently for him. He was convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to the electric chair. Still he appealed for another trial; but his appeal failed and the other day he was electrocuted.

Recent events in the Senate, of course, have revealed that some of the western Republicans are, at present, at any rate, more removed from the point of view of the administration at Washington than are some eastern Democrats. Whatever shall develop in the form of party cleavages, one thing seems certain, and that is that although the Republican party is the party of the interests, its hold upon Congress in the matter of tariff legislation has been considerably weakened by the trend of events at the special session which ened by the trend of events at the special session which adjourned last Friday—with the Hawley-Smoot bill

ORIGINS OF U.S. COLLEGE ATHLETICS

The Carnesie Bulletin on College Athletics

The origins of American college athletics go back to colonial days and the decline of pioneer life. At that time, athletic skill was looked upon as somewhat beneath the dignity of a serious scholar. Certain colleges legislated against athletics as early as 1761. The Princeton faculty in 1767 voted formally that "there are many more amusements more honorable and more useful" for undergraduates than shinny.

Although the first authoritative reference to football as a college pastime is to Princeton in 1820, Dr. Charles Follen, the first professor of German at Harvard, who inaugurated and coached cross-country running in 1824, may be called the Father of American College Athletics. Yale began to develop rowing in 1843. Baseball, before 1852, had little standing in colleges. By 1870 athletics had taken their place in American college life.

The study traces in some detail the growth of college.

The study traces in some detail the growth of college athleties, and the attitude of faculties, alumni, and students toward them from these early days to the present time.

A THOUGHT

Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it; if he do not turn from his way, he shall die in iniquity—Ezekiel xxxiii 3.

He who has it in his power to commit sin, is less inclined to do so. The very idea of being able, weakens his desire.—Ovid.

have been many cases in state courts in the neighboring republic in which a convicted man has successfully petitioned for a new trial because of minor errors at his first one. In not a few instances well-deserved punishment has been avoided. But a dispatch from Texas the other day reminded us that it does not always work out that way.

The man in this case was arrested some time ago and brought to trial for murder; but he was convicted only of manslaughter and sentenced to four years in prison. He appealed to his lawyer and eventually succeeded in getting a new trial. This time he was convicted of second degree murder and instead of four years in the Interior town where I was stay-convicted of second degree murder and instead of four years in the Interior town where I was stay-convicted of second degree murder and instead of four years in the Interior town where I was atay-convicted of second degree murder and instead of four years in the Interior town where I was atay-convicted of second degree murder and instead of four years in the Interior is how fortunate we are here to be able to see a series of good road shows at this season. Still he appealed for another trial; but his appeal failed and the other day he was electrocated.

We do not know what the records would show; but it would seem fairly safe to suggest that only very rarely does it work out as it did in the case of this man in Texa. It at least is one case in which the guilty one would have been wise to have let well enough alone.

The Guardian for one, fears that when it is smart to noon. Bus local fashion will not hear about this revolution in the mode for a long time yet, and you can count on a continuance, for this winter at least, of the good old custom of ruining the first act.

CLEMENCEAU IS dead and everyone, in trying to estimate his career stresses the phase of it which brough stresses the phase of it which brought that hard-bitten realist into such portentous conflict with Wilson, the idealist. It is well thus to emphasize that conflict, for when the history of those hideous years is finally written, free from the prejudice which clouds our eyes to-day, the struggle between Clemenceau and Wilson may appear to the final authorities as the most important part of the whole business; important not because it was so old, so inevitable and so unending. It summed up the whole history of man from his beginning onward, and it revealed the shadow which still hangs across his future.

EVERY MAN, in a small, weak way, is either a Clemenceau or a Wilson. The ideas which these two men battled over at Versailles basically are the ideas which divide the human family into two distinct groups as esparate and unyleiding as oil and water. Earlier than the time of Christ those two schools of thought, which doubtiess had existed long before, had declared to the world their contrary doctrines and they have not altered a jot since. To the Editor:—O. H. Cogswell attacks my letter re our aged and infirm aldermen. He implies that my head is not acrewed on right. Fine. I trust his is correctly connected to his neck Anyway, I will defy any man to show me aldermen in any progressive city so aged as some of the men we repeatedly elect. Any citizen of unbiassed mind who follows our councils proceedings will agree with me. As to Government pensioners, if they are still capable, why does the dovernment find it more profitable to pay them for their absence? Why should we have men running our city who are found deficient for the Government position they held many years? O. H. Cogswell's reference to the man on crutches is absurd. I presume he was used to inflame public sentiment in favor of a Victory loan. Much different from the practical business of running a city. Mr. Fielding was a party politician. He held the job za long as his party held power. Younger, brains could be hired for the actual work. But it is different with am alderman. I still maintain a change if due.

GOVERNMENT APPOINTMENTS

To the Editor:—As I have been more than a quarter of a century a representative of the Civil Service Commission of Canada as supervising examiner in the district of Victoria, allow me to state a few facts which may be of interest to some of your readers. The object of the examinations was to test the fitness of candidates for government positions. I have no hesitation in affirming that of the twenty annual reports issued by the commission, the last one, that for 1928, was the most matisfactory. Let me quote a few extracts to support that statement. More than 1,500 individual examinations were held throughout the Dominion, at which over 21,000 candidates were tested as to their fitness for govern—(Concluded on page 9)

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, NOVEMBER 28, 1904

The death of J. P. Planta occurred at Nanaimo on Saturday afternoom. The deceased was well known in this province, having been prominently identified with the early history of education in British Columbia.

John Cain, of Port Angeles, is in the city, having just arrived from the east. Mr. Cain is looking into iron properties on Vancouver Island, and expects later, if satisfactory arrangements can be made, to have his principals in the east visit the Coast.

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity—Easterly winds, mostly cloudy, with rain to-night or on Tuesday.

The management of the Dalias Hotel announce that they have made arrangements for another series of entertainments to be given by the Pleirots.

It is quite likely that before the city fathers make a decisive move on the city water question, they will engage an expert to examine the whole system, and submit a report.

HMS. Shearwater went into drydock on Monday to have her underwater fittings placed in condition. She will be in drydock for ten days.

The survey ship Egeria has returned from a surveying expedition along the coast of this Province. This work has been completed for a considerable distance north, and the Egeria will now be tied up for the winter.

Passengers carried by street cars totaled 77,684,731. compared with 77,083,656 in 1928. Because of the increasing number of private automobiles, revenue from street car operations shows only a slight increase. Revenue from power and light sales, however, has expanded with the total number of consumers increasing during the year from 100,337 to 105,908, and the number of kilowath hours of consumption from 200,405,805 to 342,-627,810. Gas consumers increased in the year from 41,976,810,000 cubic leet to 1,192,433,000 cubic feet.

I want to tell you about Enos Fruit Salt"

N 1906, I called at the office of the firm of J. C. ENO Limited, Pomeroy Street, New Cross, London, S. E., and presented a selling plan so foreign to anything they had ever thought of, that, although I was treated with every courtesy, my plan did not get much consideration. I went back a second and a third time, and I finally said to the Managing Director: "I will double your business in Canada in the next year or no pay." He realized that I was sincere and he gave me a chance. Within twelve months I obtained for them over four times the amount of business they had ever taken in one year in the Dominion of Canada.

I had the best product of its kind in the world to sell; I had the utmost confidence in it—the same confidence I now have, although to-day I am better acquainted with ENO. It is not now a question of a turnover measured in thousands of dollars-it is hundreds of thousands in Canada and millions of dollars over the

This very wonderful proprietary has helped me to build the largest independent Specialty Selling Organization in the World. My companies are now the Sales Agents for Eno in all because we were able to sell this World-Famed product in such large quantities that the Druggists, in turn, could sell it at a popular price to their customers. Its success in Canada is typical of its success everywhere and is indicated by the fact that many Canadian dealers who formerly purchased in small quantities are now carload buyers.

My proposition to you

Walk into a Drug Store in your city and buy a bottle of Eno's "Fruit Salt." Try it regularly for a fortnight. If you are not then fully satisfied that it is everything claimed for it, return the bottle to your Druggist or to me and I will refund your money without question.

Eno's "Fruit Salt" will do for you what it has done for millions of others. The people who live in the best homes, stay at the best hotels, travel first class on ocean steamers and on trains-in other words, people who demand the best-would never think of being-without a bottle of Eno at home and when travelling. Doctors prescribe it freely and use it themselves. (Many people buy it by the half dozen or dozen at a time.) Use it yourself and give it to your family and friends.

Try my suggestion-buy it to-day-you will thank me for having made you this offer.

-the "Just-As-Good" Dealer

-the Man Who Tries to Sell You Something Because He Says "This Is Better"

We have been informed that certain unscrupulous druggists and dealers are not only trying to substitute what they call "Just as good" products, when their customers ask them for nationally known and proved Proprietaries, but in this case we specifically warn you that there is only one "Fruit Salt." Therefore, only accept Eno's "Fruit Salt" when you require the highest type of a Saline. The substituting practice is unfair to the Public, to J. C. Eno Ltd., who own the trademark "Fruit Salt" and it is unfair to the druggist himself if he only knew it. These offenders will assuredly lose the confidence of physicians and the public, for if a dealer so readily offers to substitute or recommend some other product simply because it may mean a cent or two extra profit, he does it for the sake of selfish gain—not in the interest of you, his customer. Would you trust this type of druggist to compound a prescription written by your physician, which calls for expensive ingredients? Would this type of money-hungry dealer not substitute inferior quality ingredients in your prescription for the same reason that he will offer you a substitute for a well-known Proprietary, which has been tried and has proved its value all over the World.

When your health is being considered you need the best

When your health is being considered you need the best

To the man or woman who knows from experience that only Eno can give Eno results, the effort to substitute on the part of the occasional unwise druggist or dealer will be met by a justly indignant protest. But to those to whom Eno has been recommended by a physician or a friend there is a danger that the act of substitution may be successfully carried out and that the customer may go home with a product which is not and never could be Eno's "Fruit Salt" and which never could approach in effectiveness the Eno which for 60 years has brought the glow of health to the faces of the world's millions.

This part of this page announcement is only inserted to warn the public against a certain type of dealer. The self-respecting druggist—the worth-while community druggist and the large dealers are never guilty of this practice.

Last night's matches in the Garrison badminton champion-ships proved to be the best yet witnessed in the tourney. Five extra set affairs were seen during the evening.

The singles as usual drew most of the interest. Florence Oates in defeating Mona Miller pulled the most outstanding surprise to date. Miss Miller was considered a certainty to come through as she had defeated most of the men players in practice games.

Although they won by the margin of three goals, the Navy had no cinch by any means. The Bays were always fighting hard and onlypoor work by their forwards in from of the goal kept them from making the score closer. The departments had just about as much of the play as the blue jackets, but they don't take advantage of the chances its the Navy. President Adams, in a letter to Shore last night, enclosed remuneration at the rate of $100 per sear for each of the five facial wounds Shore suffered in the game with the Marcons at Montreal last Saturday night. Adams made formal protest to President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League against. "Babe" Slebert of the Marcons, whom he blamed for Shore's injuries, which were serious enough to keep him out of Tuesday night's game with the same team. The league official replied, according to the Bruins' management, that statements of the Shore-Slebert clash were so highly contradictory that the Montreal player was entitled to the benefit of the doubt.

SHIP TONNAGE FIGURES SHOW B.C. PROGRESS

Business Has Nearly Doubled Since 19:4, Government Manual Shows

Increase in the shipping trade of British Columbia since the year 1876 is shown in a series of interesting tables incorporated in the British Columbia Manuel which has just been issued by the B.C. Government through the Bureau of Provincial Information. The leading table covering all ports of British Columbia and covering deep sea and coastwise shipping inward and outward, shows that the tomage has jumped from 410.795 in 1876 to 49.335.919 in 1928. Deep sea tonnage in 1928 was 21.903.733 and coastwise tomage 27.427.186.

Another table gives interesting comparisons on the number of ships entering and leaving British Columbia ports. In 1914 there were 5.587 inward and 3.713 outward ships and in 1928 there were 9.336 inward and 9.468 outward ships in the seagoing class. The inward tonnage in 1914 was 5.250.397 and the outward tonnage 10.715.267 and the outward tonnage 10.715.267.

Anton Rubinstein, born November 25, 1829, was a great planist and composer, carrying out the promise of his youth.

The father objected to having his son appear in public, and yet he wished to help the charity. Pinally he consented, and little Anton was told to prepare a programme.

The night of the concert, the hall was filled. Anton had never seen so many people. He felt very small as he made his bow and walked to the plano.

There can be no Compromise with Purity of TONE!

A LITTLE while ago we were content with what radio gave us. It was all too wonderful to be criticized. But to-day when you buy a radio you don't want an experiment or a mechanical toy. You want a musical instrument, capable of pouring forth the world's most glorious music. You get it in the full, warm, sonorous tone of the Victor.

You Forget Everything But The Music

We do not point to this or that about the new Victor Radio . . . we make no confusing claims . . . we prefer to have you hear the pure, clear, brilliant TONE of the instrument and you will forget everything but the music! You will hear a reproducing instrument that actually reproduces!

Hear It To-day-Judge for Yourself

Victor asks you to believe nothing but the testimony of your own ears. You will hear the ONLY instrument to receive the unqualified, unpaid-for endorsement of the greatest living musicians, for its matchless TONE.

DESPITE MARKETS

Sales of wheat over the marketing period under review—1923-29—the report states, have been remarkably regular in view of the extreme conditions of the world's markets, which had to be contended with.

The carry-over was a result of the super-abundance of supplies which could not be placed into consumptive channels without demoralizing the world markets.

Deliveries to country elevators or over platforms in the western inspection division during the year ending July 31 last were 475,711.626 bushels of wheat, of which 244,248,200 bushels were delivered to the pool, or 51.3 per cent of the total crop.

Dealing with the export trade, the bushels of the coarse grain pools have shown a surprising development in the particularly market.

Dealing with the export trade, the report shows that the Canadian Pool shipped to ninety ports in nineteen countries, a total of 108,140,000 bushels, the largest shipments being to the United Kingdom, 34,664,851 bushels.

No announcement of the final payment has yet been made, the report on hand from last year. This is the first year that there, has been such a carry-over. The only alternative was to have sold the crop at a price level.

We did not follow this advice, but we wrote to Vancouver and received a sheet of the transactions of the day in question and this sheet did not show anything like the quantity of shares of Pend Orelle sold that day at the price at which it was supposed to have been purchased for us. Upon presentation to the secretary of that exchange we were merely notified that it had been omitted by error, and this is the excuse that has been given to us in connection with the Standard Stock & Minning Exchange in regard to certain Danasas. Why Not Put Marriage on a Sound Business Basis?—Curing a Wife of Her Slovenly Ways; When Honor Should Outweigh Misfortun

But divorce was a disgrace in grandpa and grandma's day. It was simply one of the things that respectable people didn't do, and grandpa and grandmaknew that they had to stick it out until one or the other of them died, and so they made the best of their bargain, and put up with each other, and made concessions, and adapted themselves to each other, and in the end sulled off the marriages that kept families together, and made reasonably happy homes.

And so at the very first disappointment they rush off to the divorce court. They don't make the slightest honest effort to try to get along together and to make a success of their marriage. They haven't the patience to wait for things to better themselves. They don't try to find out what is the matter with themselves, or their partners that keeps their marriage from being a going concern. They don't seek the cause of their failure and try to remedy it.

They don't take that attitude toward any business or profession in which they engage as a life work. They don't expect a business or a store to pay dividends from the start. They know that they must put in years of hard work to establish it on a paying hasis. They don't go into bankrupicy at the first hint of trouble. They stave it off as long any possible. For well they know that many a business that has been on the verge of failure a hundred times makes a fortune for those who had the grit just to stick on.

the grit just to stick on.

And it is the same way with marriage. There is hardly a one that couldn't be saved if either the husband or the wife had the courage to carry on through the first years of discouragment.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX.—I have been married four years. My wife says she loves me and I want to love her as I did at the beginning, but she is killing my affection for her oy her sloveny appearance. I was reared in a home of refinement and never saw my mother or sister looking unitdy, and a woman who is careless about her dress is abhorrent to me. My wife knows how I feel about this, and I have tried to impress on her how important it for her to be well-groomed, and how mortified I feel when I have to present a slouchy-looking woman to my friends as my wife, but it does no good. Don't you think that if she really loved me she would try to make herself attractive instead of repulsive to me?

DISGUSTED HUSBAND,

ANSWER:

The frouble with your wife is not that she loves you less, but her own ease and comfort more. Slovenliness is lavariably the result of laziness.

There was a time when women feit that when they once got a husband hey had him for keeps, and that they couldn't lose him if they tried, and that hey could let themselves go and get as fat and blousy, and go as slouchy as hey pleased. Those were the days when women came to breakfast with their hair lone up in curl papers, and with solled wrappers on, and floppy slippers, and considered their comfort instead of their looks.

Desperate cases require desperate remedies, poor disgusted husband, and so I think the best cure for your wife is to throw a good scare into her. Tell her that you are sahamed to be seen out with her, and that you are going to take out some good-looking, well-groomed woman, and perhaps when she sees that you are going to pass her up for a living picture she will get busy trying to improve her own appearance.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been engaged to a young lady and we were to be married very soon. About two months ago we were in an automobile accident in my car. I was uninjured, but she was hurt so badly that she lost one of her legs. They say she will be a burden to me, but I think differently and feel she can be just as good a wife now as she could have been if she hadn't had this misfortune. What would you advise me to do?

SQUARE-SHOOTER.

ANSWER:

Marry the girl by all means. Every dictate of honor and chivalry requires you to do it, and if you don't, you will lose your own self-respect and he despised by every decent man and woman who knows you. Nothing that has happened to the girl has affected her ability to be a good wife to you. She need not be even much lamed by losing her leg, as artificial limbs are made now that serve as a fair substitute for the real ones.

Before the scene ends Miss Beebe submits to practical demonstrations of the half and full Nelson, wrist locks, arm locks, head locks and other muscle wrecking holds, and responds with all the rib-tickling facial expressions that belit a genuine wreetier.
